

Sycamore Cabins at Camp Ken-Jockey

The Sycamore Cabin unit is located on the western side of camp. Big Darby Creek, Becky's Pond, and the Elam Environmental Center are minutes away.

Setting

Sycamore Cabins, often nicknamed the "tree houses" by troops, are located in a private setting down the hill from other units. A boardwalk connects four small cabins with a larger main cabin. Sycamore offers a more rustic camping experience than a lodge and is perfect for older girls. A fire circle and picnic tables are located in the center of the unit. Nearby wildlife and wild flowers are abundant.

Site Features and Program Possibilities

On this 220-acre wooded site, there is enough space for activities with other troops also using the site. The Big Darby Creek, a state and national scenic river, is on the western border of camp. Bring your own poles and bait to fish in Becky's Pond. Seasonal canoeing and archery (requires advance registration) also are available. The Elam Environmental Center is located nearby and offers staff-led programs for all ages. Other activities could include nature study, cooking, campfires, flag ceremonies, hiking, crafts, Girl Scout's Own, and mapping.

Unit Specifications

Availability:	Mid-April through mid-October, except during day camp
Capacity:	Up to 20 people may stay overnight
Construction:	Four elevated cabins, each sleeping four people
Cabin Shelter:	Wood cabin, one large room, non-working fireplace, sleeps four people
Furniture:	Bunk beds in cabins and cabin shelter, picnic tables at fire circle, tables in cabin shelter
Lighting:	Latrine, cabins and boardwalk are lit by electricity.
Appliances:	Small (5 cu.ft.) refrigerator in cabin shelter
Bathroom:	Latrine in unit, showers at pool house
Water:	Outdoor faucet in the unit, well water
Firewood:	Free wood is always available in the forest

Cabin Shelter

Cabin Shelter Interior

Interior of Individual Cabin (partial)

Connecting Boardwalk